
Primeval

Posted by ianengle - 2008/09/18 10:58

I'm starting to put together pregens for a Primeval RPG setting as well. (Season 1 and 2 dvds being released any time now.)

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by Loco Gigantes - 2008/09/18 15:35

Man, lots of room to run with the Primeval setting. Should be awesome to play in.

Cannot wait for Season 3.

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by ianengle - 2008/09/18 16:48

Lots of room, and lots of potential for conspiracy.

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by jlhburnett - 2008/09/20 03:12

Man, I keep losing pop culture cred left and right.

What's Primeval?

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by Loco Gigantes - 2008/09/20 04:05

Primeval is a BBC show that has started airing on BBC America. It was created by the guys who did the documentary "Walking with Dinosaurs".

It follows the adventures of Professor Nick Cutter as he investigates "anomalies" that are opening up around England that are portals to other periods in our pre-history. The problem with the "anomalies" are the dinos and other pre-historic creatures that come to our side and wreck havok.

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by jlhburnett - 2008/09/20 04:18

Ok, I remember Ian telling me about that show at Gencon or something. It sounded neat.

I need to get this BBC America thing. My basic cable doesn't offer it.

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by ianengle - 2008/09/20 14:39

jlhburnett wrote:

I need to get this BBC America thing. My basic cable doesn't offer it.

My cable company just transferred me over without asking--god bless'em. I'm more than willing to pay extra for this and Torchwood.

=====

Re:Primeval

Posted by ianengle - 2008/09/20 14:41

Loco Gigantes wrote:

It follows the adventures of Professor Nick Cutter as he investigates "anomalies" that are opening up around England that are portals to other periods in our pre-history.

Or rather history in general, although we don;t figure that out right away. It's a case of simple "present era" chauvanism.

=====